Boycott Chevron

Chevron fuels genocide.

Chevron operates and partially owns the largest Israeli natural gas fields: Tamar and Leviathan. They also operate the East Mediterranean Gas (EMG) pipeline, which runs from Israel to Egypt, along the Gaza coast.

- Chevron provides 70% of Israel's energy. The same energy Israel uses to collectively punish Palestine.
- In 2022, Chevron made $1.5 billion from illegal operations in occupied Palestine.
- The same year, Chevron paid Israel $462 million in taxes.

Chevron's history of destruction

All oil companies commit a baseline level of evil in creating climate chaos, but Chevron goes above and beyond.

- Plaquemines: After years of litigation, Chevron still owes Louisiana parishes over $700 million for destroying wetlands and releasing toxic waste.
- Geismar: In 2024, an explosion at Chevron's Geismar plant hospitalized two workers, after Jeff Landry gave Chevron $100 million in bonds to expand.
- Texas: Two explosions at Chevron's Pasadena plant killed 2 workers and injured 100.
- Ecuador: 30,000 Indigenous people sued Chevron for releasing 16 billion gallons of toxic waste in 54 pit sites. Their lawyer, Steven Donziger, is under house arrest and Chevron has not paid the associated $9.5 billion they owe.
- Burma-Myanmar: Chevron has used forced labor to build and operate its gas pipeline in the country since the 1990s. In 2017, Chevron refused to take a stand against the Rohingya genocide.
- Venezuela: Chevron is the main beneficiary of the US kidnapping of the Venezuelan president. Trump admitted that he notified fossil fuel executives - not Congress - prior to the military operation that Chevron now profits from.

How we'll end this

Merchants of death like Chevron only understand one language: money. The Palestinian-led Boycott Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) movement has singled out Chevron as a target for consumer boycotts and divestment. Chevron entered the Israeli market in 2020 and can just as easily exit.

Chevron is only one oil company, but winning concessions from one corporation ripples across the industry. As oil costs are on people's minds, the time is ripe to organize against the perpetrators of genocide and ecocide.
