What is Eco-socialism?

Together we can make it real.
Baton Rouge DSA is your local chapter of the Democratic Socialists of America, the largest socialist organization in the US. You can learn more at brdsa.org

A better world is possible.

Only through solidarity can we turn away from the brink of devastating climate change and overcome the power of entrenched wealth

Louisiana has been ravaged by capitalism's environmental destruction. It has created a "Cancer Alley" from Baton Rouge to New Orleans. Corporations pollute the river. Oil companies like Chevron have plundered our coast. Chemical factories explode and release toxins in our air. Every summer is hotter than the last.

An immense crisis looms over an unequal world.

Tweaking their dials, Democrats win insufficient, vulnerable victories while Republicans ignore the problem and fan the flames. Capitalism has proven unable to deliver the deep cuts needed to preserve a stable climate.

To catalyze the political mobilization necessary for transformational change, we need a vision of the future where everyone's voice is heard and people are valued over profit: ecosocialism.

Ecosocialism starts at the grass roots and aims for the sky.

We are students, teachers, union members, and activists, but most importantly we are part of the Baton Rouge community. We live in the capital of a state already experiencing the harms of the climate catastrophe.

We are fighting for food justice, clean and cheap energy production and transportation, community gardens and co-ops, backyards free of pipelines, an end to oil billionaires' control of our state, and an economy that serves the interests of regular people.
