What is Socialist Feminism?

A better world is possible.

Together we can make it real.

The Baton Rouge chapter of the Democratic Socialists of America is fighting for a socialist feminist future. Visit brdsa.org

It's more than just identity

The emancipation of women cannot be achieved by merely gaining power within the existing system. We reject a vision of feminism that is based purely on lifestyle and relies on the subjugation of other women.

We reject a Western-centric, consumption-based feminism that glorifies female CEOs and ignores the suffering of their employees, or an imperialist feminism that celebrates female military leaders and ignores the women dying under their bombs. Our feminism cannot ignore the brutal reality of international capitalism. A robust critique of capitalism is the only way to achieve a global understanding of women's oppression.

Our analysis is stronger when it is intersectional

Reproductive rights are a socialist issue. Poverty is a feminist issue.

Socialist Feminism refuses to be reduced to a single analytical lens, instead focusing on the ways these systems of oppression reinforce one another.

The government of Louisiana has put the rights of the wealthy ahead of the rights of women. While employers can fire someone for getting pregnant, pregnant people are not allowed to control their own bodies.

It's more than just class

Patriarchy predates capitalism, and the oppression of women transcends class. From unpaid domestic labor to cultural expressions of misogyny, socialism must confront the specific realities of women's lives.

An economic analysis that fails to address the real differences in women's experiences under capitalism is incomplete. The path to achieving true equality requires a focused critique of the cultural force of patriarchy.
